FAMILY SERVICES

Dzee Ba'yugh (meaning Heart House) safe house program offers a safe place for women and their children fleeing family violence. Culturally appropriate services and support to access safe community resources.

Creating wellness together.

Dzee Ba'yugh Safe House

We provide emergency shelter services for women and their children escaping family violence for up to 30 days. Depending on current community realities, we can reassess a family's file and extend their stay month-to-month for a maximum of 12 months.

Dzee Ba'yugh has 6 bedrooms and 22 beds to support up to 6 women and their children.

We prioritize beds for women with children from the 11 CSFS member nations, but our services are available to all women and their children fleeing family violence (based on the availability of beds and space). If beds are not available, we provide advocacy and support in accessing other services.

While staying at Dzee Ba'yugh, women and their children participate in culturally appropriate programming and receive wrap-around services and supports.
